Postmasters Food From remarks which we frequently hear, as to the pecuniary value to the incumbents of our largest Post Offices, it is evident that the subject is about as little auderstood as any other connected with just office matters. For instance, quite an intelligent merchant recently insisted, in our bearing, that the New York-post office was worth "all the way from $6.000" The facts are simply these:—This matter of compensation of postmisters is entirely regulated and controlled by law. All offers where the commissions automit to $2,000 and upward, are designated as salary offices, $2, 00 Dip. and 3 being the maximum pay allowed from the Dip. and 3 gource, and an additional $2,000 to be taken out of the receipts for box rents - making $4. 2 000 the highest compensation to any postmus-2 t.r. A larger som than this cannot be real a-2 ed without resorting to acts made criminal and felonious by laws of Congress, and punish big by the severest populties. Even were a post-master inclined to take the risk of such pena: ties, as well as the fain of private and official character, such are the checks and restraints now enforced, that the "pickings and stealtalk about, are outirely out of the question: And if it were not so, the incluigence in such practices would involve perjury, as a postunater is required to make outh that he has hope nothing from the Gavernment in the way, of fees or emolaments of may kind, to which he is not legally entitled. It will thus be seen that the New York Post Office, with its 238 olerks, 117 permy posts. $1,000,000 antital revenue collected, and its $150,000 bond, under an honest administration of its duties cannot be made to net much, if any, more than to prepare a statement of the emolaments received annually at the large Post Offices in

Important Becisions We publish below a decision of the Au seme Court, made this week, and of interest nd importance to all railroad travelers: The C. C. A. C. Hailroad Communy, amuel M. Bartman. In error to the District

Dourt of Crawford County. Surare J. Hold lat. That where a person purchased a ticket and took his passage upon a train, and after the train had started upon the road and he had gives up his ticket to the conductor; he could not, at un intermediate station, by virtue of his subsisting contract, leave such train while in the reasonable performance of the contract, and chim a seat upon another train. 2nd. That the railroad company had the ight to prescribe reasonable conditions to the idmiftance of way passengers upon their freight trains, and that payment of fare to to taking passage on such trains was not an arrensonable condition. ployee on the train unauthorized to receive the same is not an offer to the Company, and, in such case, does not entitle the person to place on the freight train, as passenger. 4th. That it is error to instruct a jury that in a proper case for exemplary dumugti they should know that in case the party re-cover less than $150 be can not recover his
